Sunday, June 17, 2007 I ate in Brunswick for the first time this past Saturday. To my great delight, I discovered that the Caffè Metro. While I'm on my diet, I hadn't been able to afford real Italian gelato or any of the wonderful pastries from Victo's. I walked right over to it after my Irish coffee with a friend, and ordered a cannoli and a parfait. And, not to scare you, but it was absolutely fantastic. Like, really wonderful. The cannoli was like a spiced/cinnamon roll cookie with a soft interior. The parfait was a velvety chocolate custard, covered in spun sugar. I had to eat it in two bites, because it was that delicious. I ordered a cup of strong espresso, 09e8f5149f
